Recognizing Signs and Symptoms of Klonopin Addiction

by Louisville Addiction Treatment Center | May 5, 2023

Addiction can be a challenging and isolating struggle, but it is important to remember that you are not alone. If you are seeking addiction treatment in Louisville, Kentucky, there is hope.

Klonopin, generic name Clonazepam, is a prescription medication that's normally used to control or prevent seizures and to mitigate anxiety from panic attacks. It's a sedative drug that works by slowing down messages in the brain and inducing feelings of relaxation and euphoria.

Klonopin belongs to a class of drugs known as benzodiazepines and is considered highly addictive. It is intended only for short-term use because of the increased possibility for tolerance and dependence, even if taken according to prescription.

Prolonged Klonopin use eventually leads to emotional, mental, and physical reliance on the drug to the point where an individual is unable to function without it.

Signs and Symptoms of Klonopin Addiction

The common symptoms of Klonopin abuse include:

- Muscle weakness
- Dizziness
- Profound drowsiness during the day
- Sudden shifts in mood
- Slurred speech
- Poor judgment
- Stomach upset is often accompanied by nausea and vomiting
- Clumsiness and lack of coordination
- Disorganized thinking
- Restlessness and agitation
- Slowed or delayed reaction time
- Psychotic symptoms such as hallucinations and paranoia

These symptoms can be subtle in the beginning, gradually increasing in intensity as the addiction takes hold. Once the individual is addicted, their personality and demeanor may change.

Some of the signs of Klonopin addiction to look out for include:

- Doctor shopping – a person struggling with Klonopin addiction may switch doctors frequently as they run-out of prescriptions.
- Becoming secretive about how they spend their time and days.
- Unsuccessful attempts to cut back on their drug use.
- Withdrawing from family and friends and ignoring activities they used to like.
- Drug-seeking – The individual may begin asking for pills from their loved ones and friends. If they're unable to get any, they may max out their bank accounts and credit cards purchasing Klonopin from various sources. This inevitably leads to financial problems.
- Neglecting their personal hygiene, grooming, and appearance as all their waking thoughts are consumed with getting high or avoiding withdrawal symptoms.
- Escalating problematic behavior such as mixing Klonopin pills with alcohol and other drugs to get high or driving under the influence.

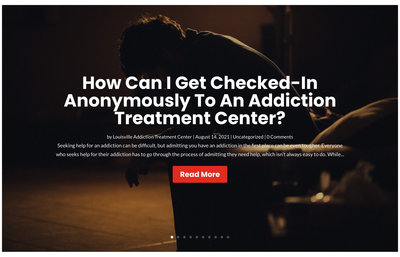
Treatment for Klonopin Addiction in Kentucky

If you or someone you love is showing any of the signs and symptoms of Klonopin addiction, it's time to get help. At Impact Outpatient Program, we offer different treatment programs in Kentucky designed to help those who are struggling with addiction to turn their lives around.

Our addiction treatment programs include partial hospitalization, intensive outpatient drug rehab, and outpatient treatment. We also offer dual diagnosis treatment for those who have any underlying or co-occurring mental health disorders along with addiction. We use a combination of psychotherapy and behavioral therapy treatment to get clients to identify the root cause of their addiction and work on getting better.

Additionally, we provide a virtual telehealth option for those who can't attend in-person treatment sessions. Contact Impact Outpatient Program today to learn more about the addiction treatment services we offer in Louisville, Kentucky.

Our Latest Posts



Our Video's